Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, 1904
The Finkle Family

"There is no more familiar name in the Bay of Quinte country than that of Finkle. No pioneer history of this old section of our province, however meagre in detail, can be written, without mention of the Finkle family. We find them in the very beginning of things in the first and second towns, and to-day we find them all over this entire region. The Finkles are associated with the Gildersleeves in the foundation of steam navigation on the Bay of Quinte. It was a Finkle who built the first frame house in Upper Canada, and it is recorded that the first court held in the Province was held at this house.

"If the excerpts from the township records be correct as published in the Hastings County Atlas, it would seem that an older George Finkle - probably the father of George and Jacob Finkle - came to Sidney at an early day; for it gives the names of twenty-seven settlers who subscribed seven pence half-penny, in the year of 1790, to purchase a book for a Township Record, and the name of George Finkle appears on the list. The George Finkle of this sketch was at that time only ten years old and could not be the person therein named. Dr. George Finkle, the grand American ancestor who came from Germany to the colonies long before the War of the Revolution, had three sons - John, George who served in the Hastings Militia in the War of 1812, and Henry; and it is quite probable that George, whose name appears on the old subscription list of 1790, was a son of Dr. George and the father of the Finkle brothers of Sidney.

"These brothers were important factors in the upbuilding of Methodism in that township. They were among the early converts and were ever classed among its staunchest supporters. No Methodist church was ever built in Sidney that did not have in it some boards of bricks furnished by the Finkles. They were naturally emotional and Methodism furnished the proper vent, that is, the old-fashioned Methodism of pioneer days. There was a power that does not manifest itself in our day; the form remains, but the life, energy and fire that characterized it in "ye olden times" when camp-meetings flourished and the joyful shouts of zealous converts reverberated through the forest have departed from it. These old camp meetings and the periodical "protracted meetings" were special seasons of great joy for the Finkles. They were not only zealous in their religious work, but they lived consistent lived.

"We say the Finkles were consistent. They were not only leading Methodists in the front of Sidney; they were leading Christians during the formative period when the social institutions of the new province were being moulded; and to such men is due the credit for the high moral status of our social life in Ontario, to-day.

"The brothers settled on adjoining lands and in interest and affection the two families were virtually one. George, the elder, was born in 1780. He married Catherine McMasters, by home he had five sons, George, Ransom, James, John and Jacob; and three daughters, Maria, Eliza and Jane. He died in 1872, in his ninety-second year; and his wife died in 1871, in her eighty-ninth year.

"Jacob Finkle was four years younger than his brother George. In 1809 he married Hannah Peterson, and they lived together as husband and wife for thirty-one years. He was one of the trustees named in the grant of three hundred acres of land on the Front of Sidney for school purposes. This historical school section is mentioned elsewhere in this work.

"If more religious zeal was manifested in pioneer times, there was also a greater prevalence of superstitious notions; our forefathers were firmer believers in Providential dispensation than we are. If one committed an act, deemed wicked by his neighbor, and it was followed by some accidental misfortune on the part of the perpetrator of the act, the neighbors would call it a "Judgement," meaning thereby that an over-ruling power, by special dispensation, had caused the accident or misfortune as a penalty for committing the act. Jacob Finkle was once a subject of providential displeasure, according to this belief. It was in a time of "catchy weather" and he was tempted to do a little harvesting on Sunday in order to save his bread. That night his only cow was missing, and it was a week before he found her. His neighbors believed - that it was a "judgement" sent upon him for desecrating the Sabbath.

"His son, Abel Finkle, was one of the best-known men of Sidney in his day, and a worthy son of the Pioneer. Full to overflowing with the "milk of human kindness," he was the friend of everybody, and everybody was his friend. He was a Methodist of the old school, and throughout the township his genial face was seen and his voice heard at all religious and social gatherings. Always young himself, he was the especial friend of the young, and was a regular Sunday School teacher until his death. He lived and died on the old Finkle homestead on the Front of Sidney, and his body rests in the picturesque cemetery on the shore of the Bay of Quinte, where so many of the masters of this district are buried. He married Catherine, daughter of Charles R. Bonisteel, and left two children: Wilson, who is a conductor on a railway in the United States, and Bertie, who resides with her mother on the old farm. Wilson married Mina Reed and has a son, Seymour, and a daughter, Katherine.

"Emery Finkle, another son of Jacob Finkle, was born on lot 21, concession 1, Sidney, (the original homestead) September 12th, 1824, and has thus experienced all the vicissitudes of pioneer life. Deer and wolves were plentiful in Sidney during Mr. Finkle's boyhood; it was almost an everyday occurrence to see the former, while the latter sometimes made night hideous with their howls. But there were pleasures, and many of them, in that early day! They had social gatherings, and the hospitality of those old pioneers was far greater than the people of the present age can realize. Everybody knew everybody else, and the custom of all turning out and helping each other at "logging" and other "bees" brought the people into close companionship, and produced a community of interests unknown in these modern times. Then there was the church, attended by all, no matter what the weather, where they assembled to worship God, being entirely indifferent as to the quality of the clothes they wore; and the log schoolhouse, where the youth attended only in winter, for all worked on the farm during the summer months! All of this Mr. Finkle has experienced, and to hear his cheerful description of those early times is like reading an interesting book. He attended school at the first schoolhouse erected on School Section No. 2, Front of Sidney. This was the old historic school mentioned elsewhere in this volume, where so many men who became well-known and useful members of society in after life received their early education.

"Mr. Finkle married, February 15th 1851, Caroline Hogle, daughter of John Hogle, and great-granddaughter of the old pioneer, Francis Hogle.

"After the death of his first wife, Mr. Finkle married, March 4th, 1878, Sarah Munroe. They have no issue.

"It is almost needless to add that Mr. Finkle belongs to the Methodist church, as did his respected ancestors, and even to this time (1904), in his eightieth year, he is very active in church matters. For over a quarter of a century he has been class-leader and trustee of the "Aikins" Methodist church, and it required some obstacle very much out of the ordinary to prevent his occupying his place in Church and Sunday School every Sabbath. He takes a deep interest in the latter, and can be seen every Sabbath giving out and reading aloud the hymns to the Sabbath School, readily reading the fine print without the aid of glasses. Mr. Finkle joined the L.O.L. [Loyal Orange Lodge; ed.] over forty years ago, but has never affiliated with any other secret organization. He is a Conservative in politics. "Uncle" Emery Finkle, as he is affectionately known, is a worthy son of a worthy family, and is as much respected as any citizen of Sidney Township.

"Jacob M. Finkle is a son of John and a grandson of Jacob Finkle, the Pioneer. He was born on the old Finkle homestead, 1st Concession of Sidney, April 11th, 1848, and is a worthy member of that respected family. He attended School No. 2, Front of Sidney, when possible, but in summer, his services were needed on the farm. So anxious was he to obtain an education, he attended school two winters after he was twenty-one!

"When twenty years old, Mr. Finkle leased his uncle Abel Finkle's farm on shares and continued to work it for seven years. This gave him his first start in life and enabled him to rent larger farms, which he worked successfully for twelve years; subsequently purchasing a part of the old Finkle homestead on the Front of Sidney, where he now resides. Mr. Finkle and his two sons are officers in the Wesley Methodist church and take an active interest in its welfare. In politics, he and his family are Conservatives. Mr. Finkle was a member of the L.O.L, 1291, Sidney, but the Lodge being destroyed by fire, he took his certificate, and not being convenient to another Lodge, he has not yet affiliated with one. The sons are well educated, energetic, typical young Canadian farmers. They farm one hundred and twenty-five acres in conjunction with their father. Their products are of a mixed character, but they are prepared to make a specialty of fruit growing, and their farm bids fair to become one of the choice farms of Sidney. It is very centrally situated being within a few rods of the Wesley church and within half a mile of School No. 2 and of the cheese factory, and but five miles from Belleville, and six miles from Trenton, respectively, the principal market towns of Hastings County. Their house is pleasantly situated on the "broken front" overlooking the Bay of Quinte."

The notes from Pioneer Life about the Gildersleeve family include the following:

"The Finkles are descended from the United Empire Loyalist George Finkle, who came from Germany when a young man, and settled in Dutchess County, New York. Here he acquired very considerable landed property, which remained in his possession until about the close of the American Revolution, His loyalty during this trying period led to the confiscation of his estates, and impelled him to seek shelter in another land, under the protection of the British Crown.

"Of his two sons, one immediately migrated to the further West and is said to have been the founder of the Finkle family in Sidney. The second son, Henry Finkle, entered the Engineer's Department at Quebec, and also mastered the trade of carpentry, before taking up the lands to which he was entitled. Subsequently he settled on the Front of Ernesttown, and on May 15th, 1788, married Lucy Bleeker. He died January 15th, 1808. He utilized his knowledge of carpentry in creating the first framed house in Upper Canada. It was, for its day, quite an imposing mansion. Here, Judge Hagerman held Court at various times, and in one of the cases before him, he inflicted capital punishment.

"The name of Henry Finkle occurs repeatedly in all the early records of Ernesttown. Not only was he respected for his means and attainments, but his kindly disposition seems to have brought him no little personal popularity. The marriage register of the parish church at Bath, shows that he officiated as a witness at innumerable weddings, among the children of the pioneers.

"He amassed a very considerable estate, and his widow was enabled to provide their children with the best possible education. Their daughter, Minerva, attended Litchfield Academy, Connecticut, as the school mates of the sisters Beecher, one of whom subsequently became famous in history and literature as Harriet Beecher Stowe, whose celebrated story of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was instrumental in driving slavery from the Western World.

"Another daughter, Sarah Finkle, attended the same academy. There is some question whether she was born in 1801 or 1804, but in either event she was scarcely more than a child when her future husband, Henry Gildersleeve, arrived in Canada."
