

Parliament Family of Prince Edward County

John A. Brebner, January 2019, version 1.2

Generation One

1. George Parliament #76636.

From "Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, 1904"

The Parliament Family

"The Parliaments were of French origin, and migrated to Holland, whence they came to England. But that is was many years ago, and at a very early date, that the family settled in England is proved by the fact that descendants now living in Canada own an old pocketbook which bears the name and date of "London, 1345." This old treasure, which has always been in the possession of the Parliament family, is made of leather and bound with thong and has pockets for bills and cash. The traditional stipulation regulating its ownership is that it is to be handed down from one generation to another, to the next of kin in the family bearing the name of George; and it still remains in the family.

"Though so many years ago, it is known that only one Parliament emigrated to (sic) America, and from him are descended all the American branches of the old Parliament family, including the Canadian pioneer, who was his son.

"George Parliament was born on the ocean, on the voyage from England to her Colonies. He settled in Orange County, in the State of New York, from which place he migrated to Canada when peace was declared after the Revolutionary War. He made the journey, accompanied by his wife and children, one of whom, Margaret, who married James Morden, gave an interesting account of the migration and the early privations of the family. She was born in 1771, and at the age of ninety-eight years had a distinct recollection of the revolution. Her father, our pioneer, was staunchly loyal and twice imprisoned, at Goshen and Poughkeepsie. She believed it was probably that spirit which made him repeatedly declare that he would lay his bones in the King's domains, which brought him to Canada. She remembered the weary days of travel on the road by Lake Oneida, her father and brothers driving the cattle, and her mother sitting up late at night preparing food for the next day's march, and of landing in Schenectady boats at Little Cataraqui. With a younger sister, Margaret, who was herself only thirteen years old, she made her way along the shore to Kingston to buy flour; but when she got there she found she had only enough to buy a quarter of a hundred of second flour, which she took back from Macaulay's store to the hungry company at Little Cataraqui, where they were wind-bound, and the men famished after swimming the cattle across the stream. It did not take them long to make their way to Fourth Town, of Adolphustown, where they settled on the north shore of Hay Bay.

"With the arrival and settlement of the family in Adolphustown, it was hoped that their sorrows and trials were at an end. But misfortune still dogged their steps, for the pioneer fell sick and died within six weeks of his arrival. The grief stricken widow, with her young family, were a pitiful spectacle, to whom neighbours could lend but slight assistance when their own families stood in need of so much. For weeks they lived in the direst distress, - on rare occasions rejoicing in the prospect of a fish dinner - and always grateful for each meagre share of milk from their only cow. But gradually the silver lining in their cloud began to reveal itself. Relief came with spring; and those who were able to work, made maple sugar or hired out among the neighbours. For two weeks work George received a pair of woman's boots. The brave woman could weave, and when she managed to get a loom she wove for the district. These united efforts eked out a sure, if scanty existence.

As the younger members of the family grew older they began to disperse. Their mother married again, her second husband being John Parcels, whose name occurs in the list of troops and loyalists disbanded at Cataraqui in 1784.

"After a year's residence in Canada, Isaac Parliament, the eldest son of the pioneer, married and returned to New York State, where he became a circuit judge.

"Another son, George Parliament, who settled in 1815 on lot 69, 3rd concession of Ameliasburgh, where he lived to attain the very old age of ninety-five years. For his first wife he married Mary McTaggart, who was born near the battlefield of Chrysler's (sic) Farm, and grew land as a United Empire loyalist. A Presbyterian by religion, he was temperate in his habits; and early riser, he went to bed early. It is recalled that on the day he was eighty-five years old he went to the wheat field and raked and bound sheaf with the hired man. He delighted in relating to his grandchildren how, when salt was scarce, he used to boil the staves of the old salt barrel and use the water for seasoning his potatoes and how, when the assizes were held at Kingston, he used to serve as a juror and be paid ten cents for each case on which he served, but received no mileage to defray the expenses of his long journey. He was succeeded by his son Samuel, who lived sixty-two years on the old homestead, where he reared a family of seven children.

"Another son of George Parliament, and a grandson of the pioneer is Calvin Parliament, who was born as long ago as 1817, and lived over thirty years on the second concession of Ameliasburgh. His reminiscences gave to the favored visitor a rare vision of the olden days.

He could recall the days of the poverty-mauls, or wooden ploughs, which were drawn by short-horned oxen; and the trouble caused to the pioneers by the wolves, bears and wildcats; he believed there was never such an abundance of good game to be found outside of Prince Edward County. It was his lonesome duty as a boy to blow the horn that warned his elders of the approach of wolves to the flock. In the chase he would guide the horsemen by cross-cutting through the forest and sounding blasts on his horn. He first settled on the fourth concession of Ameliasburgh; but, in 1872, purchased a hundred acres by the second concession, where he resided until his death, surrounded by his children and children's children to the fourth generation.

"John H. Parliament, son of Jacob C. Parliament and Elizabeth Locie (Losee), his wife, is a great-great-grandson of the pioneer. He owns and occupies lot 93, 4th concession of Ameliasburgh, which, with the fine modern two-story residence, and the well cultivated fields and the fine outbuildings, may be ranked among the first farms of the township. It is the old Henry Parliament homestead and consists of one hundred and ten acres. Mr. Parliament has taken an active interest in municipal matters, and for several years past has represented the township as councillor. In church matters he is a Methodist; and in politics subscribes to the best principles of the Conservative party. He has three sons; the eldest, Arthur, who lived on the homestead, married Mary Hawley of the pioneer Hawley family. His two other sons, Roy and Albert E. are unmarried and reside at home. Mr. Parliament married Myra Orser of the old pioneer Orser family. She died in December, 1902, at the comparatively early age of forty-four, and is interred in the Parliament family plot in Salem Cemetery."

Family settled in Ameliasburgh, Prince Edward County, Ontario

Historical Atlas of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, 1878; H. Belden & Co., Toronto.

"James P. Morden (deceased), late of Ameliasburg, came of a family of U.E. Loyalists, on both his father's and mother's side, his ancestors having come to Canada in the earliest days of the settlement of the Bay of Quinte region.

"His mother's name was Margaret Parliament, and his father was James Morden, the first settler of Sophiasburg in the vicinity of Northport, and the man who built the first house in that now prosperous village, where the subject of this brief memoir was born, and resided until twenty-one years of age, when he married Miss Catherine Babcock and removed to Ameliasburg, and settled on lot 68, in the first concession. where he raised a family of seven children - one of the daughters marrying Elkanah Babbit, who now owns and resides upon the old Morden homestead, and view of which we give elsewhere. Mr. Babbit, though quiet and unostentatious in manner, is among our most intelligent and enterprising farmers, having a high reputation among his neighbours for those qualities which combine to make the popular gentleman and useful citizen.

"The Mordens were not only among the pioneers of Prince Edward, but the influence exerted by the family in all affairs of their county and respective townships, was of a character commensurate with their intelligence and high social position. James P. Morden was for nearly half a century one of the leading citizens in the neighbourhood of Rednersville, and always exerted himself in support of all public measures pertaining to the public welfare, though he never sought - nor would he accept - any position of public trust.

"His good qualities were recognized, however, by his unsolicited appointment to the Commission of the Peace; and in his death, which occurred in March, 1864, at the age of sixty-three years, the community lost one of its best citizens."
