from Pioneer Life on the Bay of Quinte, 1904, The Morgan Families:.

"James F. Gillespie, a son of Sheriff Gillespie, and grandson of the pioneer Thomas Morgan, was appointed deputy sheriff for the County of Prince Edward in 1876. Before receiving his official appointment he was engaged in commercial life, having served for some time in a merchant's office. Besides his more important official duties, for the last nineteen years he has held the post of treasurer for the town of Picton; he is also treasurer of the Public School Board. His daughter Emma M. is the wife of Charles Howard Widdifield, a leading barrister of Picton. The Widdifields were an English Quaker family who settled in Pennsylvania, and one of whose descendants, Henry Widdifield, located as a United Empire Loyalist in Whitchurch, county of York, in 1801. The family retained its Quaker tenets, one member, Richard Widdifield, being at one time widely known in Upper Canada, as a Friend preacher. The family has numerous branches settled in York and Ontario counties. Another of its members, J. Henry Widdifield, M.D., has been sheriff of Toronto for some years. He was for fourteen years representative for North York in the Legislative Assembly, and moved the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne at the session of 1875. Charles H. Widdifield's grandmother was a sister of Benjamin Lundy, who published the first anti-slavery paper in the United States. In an interesting article in the Cosmopolitan Magazine it is stated that Benjamin Lundy was a New Jersey Quaker, who was born at Hardwick, and that his English and Welsh ancestors came at an early date to America, where branches of the family have been found in North Caroline, Pennsylvania and, indeed, wherever Quakers settled. The article adds that Lundy too the field about 1818 as a missionary of emancipation, and planted the seeds of that great movement which finally achieved the downfall of slavery. His sister, Anna Lundy, who was born in 1790, was the grandmother of Charles H. Widdifield.

"Mr. Widdifield was born at Uxbridge, in Ontario County. After receiving his education at the Upper Canada College, he read law in the office of Hector M. Howell, K.C., now of Winnipeg. Continuing his studies under Martin and Hopkins, of Lindsay, he was admitted as solicitor in 1881, and called to the Bar in 1886. He first practised in Uxbridge for four years with J.A. McGillvray, K.C., now Supreme Secretary of the Independent Order of Foresters. In 1883 he married, and in 1885 he settled in Picton. Since that date he has been a prominent figure in Prince Edward County in legal circles. In 1894 he was appointed Local Master of the High Court, having since continued to hold that office. He is secretary and treasurer of the Bay of Quinte Insurance Company. Like all the members of his family Mr. Widdifield is an ardent Liberal, and has for some time now acted as secretary of the County Liberal Association. He has frequently contributed to legal periodicals, and is the author of a work known as Widdifield on Costs. The Western Law Times reviewing this publication in 1891, writes: -

"We would have felt inclined to say that Mr. Widdifield had approached perfection in the special method he has followed in dealing with his subject, for we have nothing but praise for this useful and eminently practical book. The work, which is a manual on the taxation of costs in the High Court of Justice, is altogether very complete, and we must congratulate the author on the real success of his labors."

"Mr. Widdifield has taken his share in the local affairs of Picton, and has been a member of the Town Council and the School Board. He has not, like his ancestors, adhered to the Friends Society, but is an earnest supporter of the Church of England and Church Warden of St. Maty Magdalene's Church in Picton."
